the whole regiment would have been ready if necessary. And in spite of the carping critics of Indian newspapers and the opinion of two or three mulheaded members of Parliament, I take the liberty of thinking that the men of the Shropshire Light Infantry were most properly employed in assisting to put down the plague, and also that it is the duty of every white man—at all events every Britisher—to do his best at all times for suffering humanity. The men of the Shropshire Regiment are, I consider, worthy of special recognition. I regret, Sir, to have had to address this gathering at all, but when a set of previously decided and decided resolutions are brought up at an important public function of this kind by men who had nothing to do with quelling the plague, I am bound to enter an emphatic protest.

Solemn silence prevailed for half a minute after Mr. R. Fraser-Smith resumed his seat, and Mr. Granville Sharp, who was located just in front, was observed to nervously manipulate the family hat as if he would like to air his eloquence, but constitutional shyness prevailed. Mr. Aikroyd—"The question whether these matters should be publicly discussed at this meeting or referred to a committee for private discussion was considered by a rather large provisional committee, and it was thought that it would be rather ungracious if we discussed in public what shape the recognition of services should take, what each man had done. It was therefore decided to give this meeting as much publicity as possible and submit names for a committee of about fifty, which we thought would justly represent the community, and would be able to decide what recognition to make to those who had so nobly served the colony in the emergency. I am sorry if anyone should think I have not given sufficient credit to the Permanent Committee and officers; I am sure I do not in the least wish to slight the merit of praise, and, as I have already stated, if I have forgotten to mention anybody, I am quite sure this Committee will make up any omission of mine (Applause.)

His Excellency then put the motion, which was carried unanimously, amid loud applause. Mr. Kewick moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Governor for presiding. Mr. Hopkiss seconded, and it was carried by acclamation. His Excellency—"Gentlemen, I thank you very much for those cheers. I think, I should have felt culpably in my duty if I had not been present on this occasion, to show the heartiest appreciation of the noble efforts made by the volunteers in the terrible crisis through which we have just passed.

This concluded the meeting.

ALLISON'S VAUDEVILLES.

Owing to the unpropitious state of the weather, Allison's Vaudeville has color had anything but successful season in Hongkong, and this is all the more to be regretted as the Company is exceptionally talented and in every way deserving of support. Of course, when typhoons are raging all round us there are other things to be thought about besides enjoyment at the Theatre, and it may not be altogether the fault of our fair army of local play-goers that this one of the most talented combinations that has ever visited the colony, has not performed nightly to crowded houses.

It is rather difficult to find a term to adequately express in professional language what the "Vaudeville" actually are. Of course they are variety artists, and in this particular line of business shine brightly; but they are also great in modern light comedy, Professor Editor's phonograph is most valuable. Mr. Boyce's cornet and piano obligate an enjoyable novelty. Mr. Daniel H. Kelly a thoroughly good all-round character actor. Mr. Alf. James a talented comedian of the highest class. Miss Bessie Grey the most accomplished soprano singer heard in Hongkong for many a long day and also a most vivacious actress and accomplished dancer, whilst Senorita Dolores as an actress, contrasted singer, and owner of the famous Serpentine Dance, is quite a revelation. In fact, this company more than atones for its lack of numerical strength by its all-round artistic excellence.

We do not propose to criticise in orthodox fashion any particular evening's performance by the "Vaudeville," but will briefly refer to various items in the attractive bills of fare they have offered the Hongkong public during their short stay here. A specialty with the company is the representation of short dramatic sketches called by courtesy comedettes, and in this department undeniable successes have been scored by Mr. Alf. James and Senorita Dolores in "A Model Pair," and by Mr. Kelly and Miss Bessie Grey in "Imogene's Stratagem." Cleverness and versatility were conspicuous in both pieces, which met with hearty appreciation from the audience. A most amusing, if not quite a comedy, sketch called "A Modern School of Acting" was given last night, in which Senorita Dolores and Mr. James were simply immense, playing up to each other in a fashion very rarely seen on the Hongkong stage.

The versatility of this aggregation of histrionic and musical talent is noteworthy. Both Mr. James and the Hon. Daniel Kelly—hasays hewas an official in the United States Navy and is a first-class buffo singer, especially in the higher class of Italian arias, such as "Tim Finnegan's Wake," "With me, and," "The man who kicked O'Hara," and other similar ballads of that soul-inspiring character which have rightly made Italy the home of music, the land of song. In their respective lines these gentlemen have had few equals and no superiors in the Far East during the past twenty years. If Hongkong risk and fashion had been in evidence at the Theatre Royal on Wednesday night, Miss Bessie Grey's rendering of the ever popular "Kerry Dances" would have electrified them. A thrilling soprano, most judiciously modulated, added to an artistic taste that has to be seen to be understood, produced by far the best ex-position of this charming ballad "An Old Theban" has ever been listened to, and he has not forgotten the great success of Miss Clive Denver three years ago.

Senorita Dolores is the possessor of a rich contralto voice with great compass, and is a ballad singer of very high order; but it is in the Serpentine Dance that this lady excels. As represented by Senorita Dolores this most fascinating dance has hitherto been quite unknown here—nothing like it has ever been seen in the Far East. Anything more delicately graceful than this performance, embellished with electric-light and photographic effects, cannot possibly be imagined, and in itself it will amply repay a visit to the Theatre Royal. The Senorita is a most accomplished young lady, who will yet be heard of to advantage in the great world. To-morrow night the company, with the assistance of local talent, will give a Smoking Concert at the City Hall, which is sure to be well attended, and on Monday evening a concert has been arranged for the Mount Austin Hotel.

NORTH BORNEO NOTES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SANDAKAN, September 22nd.
The tobacco crop, though late, is coming on well, the plants on some of the estates (Koyah in particular) being remarkably large. Planting is barely finished yet on all the estates, and it is therefore doubtful if the fall-end of the crop will be got in safely. While of the second crop there is no chance with such late planting. It is therefore probable that on most estates there is little or no prospect of a bumper crop. On the other hand, however, the natives prognosticate a very late season, which would, of course, help out estates that are a little backward at present.

Work in connection with the overland telegraph line is progressing steadily—on the west coast faster than on the east. On the west coast the track in some places as soon as made, is occupied, and coffee, fruit trees, mango, etc., planted, so that at once a good result is obtained from the enterprise.

Sago is becoming, and all the sago districts on the west coast are benefiting by the rise in the market value of this product.

It is a very ill wind that blows nobody any good, and the war between China and Japan is beneficially influencing the coal trade of Labuan; steamers after steamers call in there to coal at a price of two dollars and upwards per ton above what it was three months ago, and so the countenances of our coal "kings," which were a rather sallow hue some little time since, are beginning to beam with smiles.

Law suits are the order of the day in Labuan, much to the delight, no doubt, of Mr. Pollock, who is said to be making pots of money. An astute lawyer the other day retained the only two legal luminaries in Labuan. The case had not come off by last accounts from our local Cardiffs, but the effect of the lawyer's tactics will, no doubt, be put the judge rather against him than otherwise.

A German geologist arrived here a fortnight ago under agreement with the Government to undertake important explorations. Shortly after his arrival he went down to Darvel Bay with sealed orders. Mr. Henry Walker, the Commissioner of Lands, left here two days ago bound for the Segawa river which he will ascend from the north, so the presumption is that he is going to join forces with the geological expert somewhere near the Darvel Bay Plantation Company's estates. The German explorer was accompanied on his pilgrimage in the forests and mountains by his courageous daughter, who seems to take as much pleasure in tramping in the wilds as do the illustrious Livingstone in bygone, yet ever-memorable days.

Cambler and cutch are away up, and the prospects of the Balaio syndicate are looking good indeed. Operations on a large scale are, it is said, in contemplation, and during the absence of the manager who has gone to Singapore to see about these matters, the factory is in charge of an engineer well known in Hongkong.

The European population of this Colony has dwindled down to as low an ebb as I think it will ever get to, and already we hear of the probability of "new chums" coming to settle here. Everybody seems to keep in good spirits, and moonlight picnics to Jaganah, butterfly-catching expeditions and "feeling" bathing costumes are "all the go." A man in a lawn tennis cap can't turn a corner here without having half-a-dozen gay young ladies with butterfly-nets descending upon him under the pretext that they concluded he was what they term a "rare species." Needless to say you can't boast of that kind of sport over in Hongkong in the month of August, and don't you forget it. As for our new bathing place, why it is simply quite too awfully jolly; Deauville isn't in it with our improvised Kamsgate.

All sorts of new enterprises are mooted, of which I will furnish the readers of the Telegraph with particulars when the projects assume more definite shape.

The North Borneo Herald of 1st September contains an account of the fight of which a more full, graphic and accurate description was published in the Hongkong Telegraph on the 22nd July. Now, a battle in which on one side two men were killed outright and twenty were wounded, while the enemy's loss was much more serious, was an affair worthy of more notice than a mere "skirmish," and it seems passing strange that one should have to look to a leading paper published outside the colony for reliable information of what goes on in it. Yet such is the case, and it suggests the idea that important facts are being suppressed for reasons best known to a select few. Why should this be? As far as the fight referred to is concerned not a word leaked out in public print until the Hongkong Telegraph published a full account of it in due course.

These are facts that afford food for a little reflection—and plenty of room for explanations in the sweet by and by.

Training for the races, which are to be held on the 3rd proximo, is in full swing. The entries are not very numerous, but some hotly contested finishes are nevertheless likely to be witnessed.

SOME OF THE GREAT ARTISTS.

Rubens was educated by his mother, to whom he attributed all his success in life.

Correggio, in spite of the greatness of his works, lived and died in almost pitiful poverty.

Van Leyden painted his first great picture, that of St. Hubert, at the age of twelve years.

Turner's pictures were admitted to the Royal Academy before the artist was twelve years old.

Vasquez was a self-educated painter. His scenes and models were generally taken from peasant life.

Craze painted several of his best pictures after he had passed eighty years, and died at eighty-three.

Giotta was a shepherd boy, and began his artistic career by sketching with a bit of chalk on a piece of slate.

Guido's later works are very inferior. They were painted in haste, to raise money for the gaming table.

Holbein was only sixteen years old when he first engaged in painting altar pieces for the churches of Basel.

Carnot was the father of the pathetic Italian school. The Ecce Homos and Mater Doloresa date from that time.

Francis did not begin painting until nearly 60 years of age, and in ten years executed a long series of admirable works.

Tintoretto's real name was Jacopo Robusti. He was called Tintoretto from being the son of a dyer, the word Tintore having that meaning.

stepping backward to get a better view, he made a mistake and fell. Navarrete was deaf and dumb. He was so fond of cats and dogs that he introduced them into his pictures. When making a contract to paint a series of pictures for the Church of the Escorial it was specially stipulated that he should not introduce any cat or dog into the paintings.—Globe Democrat.

FOR THE IRRITABLE.

THE REGIMEN PRESCRIBED BY DR. ANDREW CLARKE.

It isn't often, says a writer in the Mail and Express, that you run across advice given by an English physician twenty years ago, which contains advice as to hygiene and diet that would meet with the approval of physicians to-day. English doctors are slow to adopt new methods. A quarter of a century ago the majority of them believed as much in drastic remedies and all classes of heroic treatment as they did in the early days of Abernethy. Softening of the brain wasn't called parietis then, and appendicitis was unknown except under its generic name; of inflammation of the intestines. Sir Andrew Clarke was in all probability one of the most advanced men of his time, and while twenty years isn't a very long period, he was as far ahead of his brethren then as the neurologist is now ahead of the doctor who believed in the birch rod as a cure for hysteria in growing girls. Mr. Frederick Ridgway Griffith, of Brooklyn, has in his possession a written direction for diet and general physical treatment written by Sir Andrew Clarke in 1876. It is minute in its particularity, and altogether unlike the usual prescription that was then recognized by the profession as the proper way to cure or kill a man.

Dr. Clarke's directions were written for the benefit of a patient of an excitable temperament, suffering from nervous prostration brought on by overwork. Instead of prescribing pish and other sedatives, he earned his fifty guineas by writing out a few simple rules, which were followed with great benefit to the patient. They are plain enough for a child to follow, and hold as good now as when they were written, and are reproduced verbatim for the benefit of all those who may feel the need of them and with the conviction that they are sensible and wise. This is Dr. Clarke's instruction for a man aged 25, nervous temperament, fairly well nourished, great waster of nervous energy in business transactions and given occasionally to over-indulgence in alcoholic stimulants:

Breakfast—Bread and butter with two eggs, fresh fish, or cold chicken or game, and at close of meal one cup of tea not infused longer than three minutes, or one cup of cocoa, or Larch.—The lean of a chop with bread and a glass of water.
Dinner—Fish, with chicken or game or meat, mashed potato, fresh green vegetables, and if desired a little milk pudding. Drink one or two glasses of coffee or still Moselle, in water.
No tea or coffee after dinner.
No awaking in the morning and on going to bed sit a little fresh cold water.
Walk half an hour twice daily. Retire to bed at ten, and take nothing but what is here set down.

Now, if you do not feel like the smart Yankee hired man who gets up whistling every morning; if you are irritable and feel annoyed when people brook against you on Broadway; when you are easily awakened out of your sleep and your appetite is as whimsical as your temper, try Sir Andrew Clarke's advice. It can do you no harm, and the chances are that it will do you a great deal of good.
